

Daily Appeal

MEMPHIS.

Tuesday, July 10, 1860.
Reading Matter on Every Page.

Largest Circulation in the City.

NATIONAL

DEMOCRATIC TICKET.

FOR PRESIDENT,

S. J. DOUGLIS,

OF ILLINOIS.

FOR VICE-PRESIDENT,

H. V. JOHNSON,

OF GEORGIA.

SEE FIRST AND FOURTH PAGES.

GRAND RAIL-

OF THE NATIONAL DEMOCRATIC TICKET, AT THE SOUTH

MEMPHIS MEETING, on Wednesday evening at a early candle-light, for the purpose of ratifying the nomination of the national Democratic ticket of gallants.

DOUGLIS AND JOHNSON.

The Democratic ticket will assemble at the court house in Liverpool,

Saturday, the 14th inst., for the purpose of ratifying the nomination of the national Democratic ticket of gallants.

DOUGLIS AND JOHNSON.

Distinguished speakers have promised to address: Judge W. T. BROWN, J. KNOX

WALKER, Esq., E. M. YERGER, Esq., A.

H. DOUGLIS, Esq., and others.

A FANCY SKETCH.

Col. W. H. Carroll was the next speaker, who, in his usual forcible style, exposed the whole plot of every one of his preceding and, he declared, "any amount of resistance, his swelling, heroic soul would not be equal to it." He then, however, had a few words to say in favor of the South, and, in a masterly manner, exposed the whole plot of every one of his preceding speakers.

The above was from a characteristic tasteless leader in yesterday's audience, derived from the great popular meeting at Exchange

Building, on Saturday night.

We have a ways given our Quaker neighbors a wide and historical acquaintance, but, having been compelled to withdraw from the meeting, we were compelled to leave the room, and, as we were about to do so, Mr. C. C. Clegg, of

Newark, N. J., who had been invited to speak, came up to us, and said,

"I am sorry to see you leave,

but you must go, and I will speak."

He did so, and, in a masterly

manner, exposed the whole plot of every

one of his preceding speakers.

The above was from a masterful

tasteless leader in yesterday's audience, derived

from the great popular meeting at Exchange

Building, on Saturday night.

We have a ways given our Quaker neighbors a wide

and historical acquaintance, but, having

been compelled to withdraw from the

meeting, we were compelled to leave

the room, and, as we were

about to do so, Mr. C. C. Clegg, of

Newark, N. J., who had been invited to speak, came up to us, and said,

"I am sorry to see you leave,

but you must go, and I will speak."

He did so, and, in a masterly

manner, exposed the whole plot of every

one of his preceding speakers.

The above was from a masterful

tasteless leader in yesterday's audience, derived

from the great popular meeting at Exchange

Building, on Saturday night.

We have a ways given our Quaker neighbors a wide

and historical acquaintance, but, having

been compelled to withdraw from the

meeting, we were compelled to leave

the room, and, as we were

about to do so, Mr. C. C. Clegg, of

Newark, N. J., who had been invited to speak, came up to us, and said,

"I am sorry to see you leave,

but you must go, and I will speak."

He did so, and, in a masterly

manner, exposed the whole plot of every

one of his preceding speakers.

The above was from a masterful

tasteless leader in yesterday's audience, derived

from the great popular meeting at Exchange

Building, on Saturday night.

We have a ways given our Quaker neighbors a wide

and historical acquaintance, but, having

been compelled to withdraw from the

meeting, we were compelled to leave

the room, and, as we were

about to do so, Mr. C. C. Clegg, of

Newark, N. J., who had been invited to speak, came up to us, and said,

"I am sorry to see you leave,

but you must go, and I will speak."

He did so, and, in a masterly

manner, exposed the whole plot of every

one of his preceding speakers.

The above was from a masterful

tasteless leader in yesterday's audience, derived

from the great popular meeting at Exchange

Building, on Saturday night.

We have a ways given our Quaker neighbors a wide

and historical acquaintance, but, having

been compelled to withdraw from the

meeting, we were compelled to leave

the room, and, as we were

about to do so, Mr. C. C. Clegg, of

Newark, N. J., who had been invited

to speak, came up to us, and said,

"I am sorry to see you leave,

but you must go, and I will speak."

He did so, and, in a masterly

manner, exposed the whole plot of every

one of his preceding speakers.

The above was from a masterful

tasteless leader in yesterday's audience, derived

from the great popular meeting at Exchange

Building, on Saturday night.

We have a ways given our Quaker neighbors a wide

and historical acquaintance, but, having

been compelled to withdraw from the

meeting, we were compelled to leave

the room, and, as we were

about to do so, Mr. C. C. Clegg, of

Newark, N. J., who had been invited

to speak, came up to us, and said,

"I am sorry to see you leave,

but you must go, and I will speak."

He did so, and, in a masterly

manner, exposed the whole plot of every

one of his preceding speakers.

The above was from a masterful

tasteless leader in yesterday's audience, derived

from the great popular meeting at Exchange

Building, on Saturday night.

We have a ways given our Quaker neighbors a wide

and historical acquaintance, but, having

been compelled to withdraw from the

meeting, we were compelled to leave

the room, and, as we were

about to do so, Mr. C. C. Clegg, of

Newark, N. J., who had been invited to speak, came up to us, and said,

"I am sorry to see you leave,

but you must go, and I will speak."

He did so, and, in a masterly

manner, exposed the whole plot of every

one of his preceding speakers.

The above was from a masterful

tasteless leader in yesterday's audience, derived

from the great popular meeting at Exchange

Building, on Saturday night.

We have a ways given our Quaker neighbors a wide

and historical acquaintance, but, having

been compelled to withdraw from the

meeting, we were compelled to leave

the room, and, as we were

about to do so, Mr. C. C. Clegg, of

Newark, N. J., who had been invited to speak, came up to us, and said,

"I am sorry to see you leave,

but you must go, and I will speak."

He did so, and, in a masterly

manner, exposed the whole plot of every

one of his preceding speakers.

The above was from a masterful

tasteless leader in yesterday's audience, derived

from the great popular meeting at Exchange

Building, on Saturday night.

We have a ways given our Quaker neighbors a wide

and historical acquaintance, but, having

been compelled to withdraw from the

meeting, we were compelled to leave

the room, and, as we were

about to do so, Mr. C. C. Clegg, of

Newark, N. J., who had been invited to speak, came up to us, and said,

"I am sorry to see you leave,

but you must go, and I will speak."

He did so, and, in a masterly

manner, exposed the whole plot of every

one of his preceding speakers.

The above was from a masterful

tasteless leader in yesterday's audience, derived

from the great popular meeting at Exchange

Building, on Saturday night.

We have a ways given our Quaker neighbors a wide

and historical acquaintance, but, having

been compelled to withdraw from the

meeting, we were compelled to leave

the room, and, as we were

about to do so, Mr. C. C. Clegg, of

Newark, N. J., who had been invited to speak, came up to us, and said,